

Publication: www.nawbo.org

Date: N/A

By: N/A

Laura Davis, O'Malley & Associates

O'Malley & Associates says their Corporate Woman Of Achievement has been a role model for countless women and whose life is an inspiration for us all. Laura Davis has endured the kind of struggles in her young adulthood that hold most people back. At the age of 16, Laura had a daughter born with Spina Bifida. She had no insurance or medical help other than what she received through Medical Welfare. Sheer tenacity and determination pulled her through those teenage years as she managed to complete her high school education while caring for a child with special needs.

At age 20, she was on her own making about $400 a month at Washington National Insurance Company. Working hard at every part of her life, Laura managed to lay the groundwork for a career grinding through 8 years in underwriting and advancing to the marketing department. She moved on to Manufacturer's Life where she eventually became Director of Marketing Services— no Bachelor's Degree. Eight years later she moved on to New England Life— Vice president of Marketing— No MBA In the 90's she qualified for the Million Dollar Roundtable in her first year as a producer. Laura has qualified for that prestigious group every year since. Today, she is one of the founding principals at O'Malley & Associates where some of the top advisors in the country have gathered together to create a unique financial services organization. O'Malley and Associates is pleased to present Laura Davis as their Corporate Woman of Achievement.